WEDNESDAY MORNING, MARCH 29, 186[illegible]

Clouds that are Brewing.

The great powers of Europe are most earnestly watching the issue of events upon American soil, and as the end draws nigh, very naturally those nations that have extended sympathy and aid to the rebel cause, feel solicitude upon their own account for fear that a day of reckoning may be coming, in which they may be called to an answer. It requires no boastful spirit to imagine this, for we read it in the columns of the foreign press; it is plainly uttered in the acts and words of parliaments and councils, as well as in the editorials of the press. France and England have not looked on disinterested spectators of our struggle; their inherent jealousy of free government made them at heart hope for the success of a rebellion that might distract and divide a power whose growth and progress offered a rivalry to the claims of both.

Yesterday we were told that Napoleon meant to maintain the Mexican Empire; to-day we hear from the London Times a cool proposition that England will not wait to have an American war thrust upon her when the United States shall have recuperated and prepared for it, but commence it herself whenever her statesmen feel that we intend to demand what England cannot grant. The fall of Charleston caused more excitement in England and France than it did in New York. Our own people, from a firm determination to succeed, entertained and acted upon, had become of late months schooled to expect it, and the fall of Charleston, Savannah, Wilmington were successively received at home, as the necessary and most acceptable result of military movement and the popular will, while in France and England the news fell on the ears of rebel sympathizers like a clap of thunder from a cloudless sky. They did not expect it because they did not hope it, and in that they vastly differed from ourselves.

With all his strategy and diplomacy, Napoleon has either missed his figure, or else he has never seriously entertained the idea of holding up, by his power, an Austrian Empire for Mexico. If that was indeed his policy, he might certainly have calculated upon war with the United States as a consequence, unless sanguine that the Union of these States was broken and the power that Union gave us gone. Had he been in earnest, he should long since have entered into an alliance with Jeff. Davis, and have lent his fleets and armies to the rebel cause. Now it is too late to do so. The hour is past when France could aid the rebellion if it would, and with his hands tied by an uncertainty, he temporizes because he fears to act, and very likely will in the end avoid war by convenient diplomacy and the abandonment of all pretext for it caused by the same fear.

The question of war with France causes little trouble among us; for we, as a people, would not seek to avoid it if it were coming. War with England would be harder to accomplish; for, despite the London Times, and the aristocracy who hate us, the commonwealth of England—the bone and sinew of the land, are more desirous of our success than of our national ruin, and are willing to give us no cause for war. In the event of foreign war Oregon is likely to suffer, especially, should it be with England. We have a line of British colonies on the north, extending from ocean to ocean, and British fleets would have something to say about ocean travel to and from Columbia, though our Government could and would supply us with vessels enough to protect our commerce and our territory. Following the conclusion of Napoleon's councils, we may as well borrow no trouble, but while prepared to see a foreign war come, we may as well wait its coming without unnecessary disquiet.

The Last Word of the Passengers by the Industry.

OYSTERVILLE, March 24, 1865.

EDITOR OREGONIAN:

You will find enclosed the copy of a letter purporting to be from the passengers of the bark Industry recently wrecked at the mouth of the river. The letter was found in a bottle, by Mr. Geo. L. Brown, of this Bay, and at his request is forwarded to the OREGONIAN. The following is a correct copy:

"We, the following named, were passengers on board the bark Industry, March 15th. Should this be found, the finder will oblige many friends by addressing a note stating the circumstances of this wreck to the following named persons and places: For Harry Beane to Mr. Samuel Beane, West Alexandria, Preble County, Ohio; C. B. Heald, Sumner, Maine; L. Marks, wife and child, (no address;) For A. H. Meade to O. B. Moore, Detroit, Michigan; C. W. Shively, Astoria, O.; Silas Wightman, Plainfield, Illinois."

The names of Beane, Heald and Meade have the Masonic sign, and perhaps Wightman, but it is not distinct. We shall write to their friends according to request.

Stephen Marshall is supposed to have been drowned in this (Shoal Water Bay) on Monday last. He was out in his boat looking for the wrecked goods, and his boat was found adrift by Mr. John Hawk, of this Bay, on the same day.

M. S. GRISWOLD.

The letter was undoubtedly written before the rafts left the wreck, as Messrs. Wightman, Shively and Heald were saved from them.—ED.

AFTER THE VERDICT.—When he reached the jail at Salem, after the rendering of the verdict against him, Beale went into a fainting fit, and spasms which lasted an hour, and there was a renewal of them on the next morning, Sunday, which proved very severe. Beale is a man of sensibilities and has suffered intensely through the progress of the trial, while his companion in crime gained flesh during his confinement.

UP THE SANTIAM.—Whether the Relief and its Captain are prospecting for quartz we can't say, but one day last week Captain Miller took a trip up the Santiam further than steam had ever carried a boat before. We understand that the Relief took on board a cargo of wheat, eight miles above Jefferson, which place is the highest point before reached.

WHO TAKES OUR PETROLEUM.—Petroleum is shipped to almost every commercial port in Europe. Great Britain is the largest consumer of the product—the export from New York thither during the last year being 6,275,000 gallons. France is next in importance, her import from New York having been 4,025,000 gallons, a large increase upon the receipts of 1863. The shipments to Antwerp have also been large, amounting to 3,149,000 gallons, against 2,692,000 in 1863. Bremen has imported nearly 1,000,000; Hamburg 1,176,000, and Rotterdam 531,000 gallons. The shipments of Cronstadt indicate a large growth in the demand in Russia—the export thither having increased from 88,000 in 1863 to 400,000 gallons in 1864. The export of Genoa, Leghorn, Trieste, Lisbon and Australia, are also of considerable importance.—Philadelphia Press.

DATES TO MARCH [illegible].

NEW YORK, March 19.—The Times' special says: Deserters bring a report that the evacuation of Richmond is openly spoken of as inevitable and necessary, since the destruction of the James river canal. [illegible] the State [illegible] While [illegible] the citizens and the army [illegible] had been expressed to repair the damages, which at the same time the [illegible] had commenced.

The rebel authorities are in anticipation of a great attack by Grant, and were placing in the intrenchments every man and boy capable of handling a musket. The Government records had been packed up preparatory to removal. Enormous prices were demanded by those who had produce to sell. There was great suffering among the poorer classes, many of whom were actually starving. The prices of everything had more than doubled since Sheridan's wholesale destruction of the canal and railroad. Flour was selling at fifteen hundred dollars per barrel; meat ten dollars per pound; whisky four hundred dollars per gallon; other things in proportion. Board at the hotels was one hundred dollars per day. The common board of laborers was ten dollars per day.

The [illegible]'s correspondent says that there are unmistakable signs that the rebels are either massing a force for a desperate sortie, or that they were preparing to evacuate Petersburg and perhaps Richmond.

Gen. Kautz's Cavalry Raid.

NEW YORK, March 22.—The Tribune's army of the James special dispatch, dated March 19th, says: Gen. Kautz's cavalry division returned early this morning from a three days' tramp in the direction of the White House. The crossing of the Chickahominy was made by a long bridge. Reconnoitering parties were sent out in different directions. Four or five miles beyond the river, towards New Kent Court House, a considerable [illegible] of the enemy, believed to be a portion of Pickett's Division, was found temporarily protecting the country. Our forces were quietly withdrawn last night at 11 o'clock. The details of reconnoissance are comparatively uninteresting other than the James river took a sudden rise this morning, overflowing the banks in many places, but doing no damage to the bridges and docks. At sunset the freshet was gradually subsiding. All has been perfectly quiet along the lines to-day.

Sherman's Progress.

NEWBERN, N. C., March 15.—Parties who have arrived here from Sherman's army, say: We shall be able to join hands with him to-morrow or next day. One of them says Sherman walks over the course as fearlessly and unconcernedly as a giant among pigmies, and the people and government [illegible] and panic stricken that it is doubtful whether they will make a stand or not.

In a debate in the North Carolina legislature a few weeks since, one member stated that the entire effective force of the Confederacy numbered only 121,000 men, which statement, on being questioned, was substantiated by official documents from Richmond. The State authorities in South Carolina allow no guerrillas to prowl within the borders of the State, and have repeatedly remonstrated with the authorities [illegible] the inhuman treatment extended by the rebel government to prisoners of war. Steamers daily ascend the Neuse river to Kinston, with supplies for Schofield's and Sherman's armies. Lieutenant Knox, chief signal officer, just from the front, says reports were brought in from Goldsboro stating that the enemy had evacuated that place and were moving towards Virginia.

WASHINGTON, March 21.—Gen. Sherman wrote several days ago from Fayetteville, N. C., to a friend that he had received his supplies up Cape Fear river, and was, at the time of writing, ready to move again. He followed, with slight exception, the path laid out before he left Savannah. He states that he had ordered the arsenal at Fayetteville to be blown up, as he hardly thought the Government would need arsenals in future in either of the Carolinas. Johnson's flying army was at or near Goldsboro. It is believed he has not more than forty thousand men.

Kinston and the Defenses—Kinston Abandoned.

The Tribune has a letter from Kinston, N. C., dated March 6th, which says: The defenses which the rebels abandoned are of a very powerful description, and could have been held by Bragg's command for an indefinite time had there been no worse enemy to threaten them than Schofield. The defenses consisted of three sets of works. The outer line is situated on the northern bank of Southwest Creek, extended across the road leading to Kinston, and into the swamp. On each side were four guns. When these were manned they swept the road, and would have annihilated any approaching column. Flanking these works was out of the question, as the ground was impassible, either to the right or to the left. The second line was constructed on the northern bank of the Neuse river, immediately around the city, and was stronger than the first. The town could have been held by the rebels, and their rear was garrisoned before our advance by the [illegible] North Carolina regiment, reinforced by [illegible]'s division and by a portion of Hill's troops. Upon evacuating the place all the rebel arms and ammunition of war were taken along, except two guns mounted upon the outer line of works, and a large quantity of ammunition in the bomb proof. The inhabitants nearly all remained in the town. Deserters come in rapidly and report Bragg's troops on the retreat direct to Raleigh. This report is confirmed by inhabitants of Kinston.

Foreign.

The French Minister of Instruction had tendered his resignation, but Napoleon refused to accept it.

In the absence of later news, which was anxiously expected, the result of the fall of Charleston continued to be eagerly canvassed.

The Times says: The next operations are expected with similar interest. The Federals have recovered military occupation, but if the South is still resolved to stand out till the end, they have made but little progress towards the conclusion of the war.

In another editorial the Times says: The Confederates' exhaustion has brought us to that turning point which places us within sight of the final scene and the part we shall be called on to play in it, if the Federal Government maintains the quarrel with England in the hope of getting claims which she does not acknowledge. The question we have to address ourselves to, is simply whether they can go to war with us with fair prospects of success. If they can, they certainly will.

The Times argues that the Washington Government will show its wisdom by not attacking immediately after the conclusion of peace, but it will become English statesmen to see that the quarrel is not allowed to hang over till it suits American convenience and opportunity.

California News.

SAN FRANCISCO, March 28.—In Quartermaster O'Byrne's case to-day, Mr. Fred. MacCrellish, proprietor of the Alta, corroborated a portion of the evidence given by Mr. Evans of that paper, and that of Mr. Hueston. He testified that he remonstrated with O'Byrne about contracting debts on the strength of his employment in the Alta office, but as his creditors continued to come to the office about O'Byrne's bills, he finally discharged him. The testimony in behalf of the Government has closed for the present. Officer Blitz, and C. H. Smith, one of defendant's counsel, testified to his loyalty.

Hayward P. Eaton, the mail robber, has been sentenced to ten years' imprisonment, which is the lightest sentence under the law.

In the Great Republic case Lott Wads was convicted of cruel and unusual punishment towards Manuel Rodriguez. Wm. [illegible] was convicted of beating and wounding John C. McLaren, and Captain J. W. Paul, of the same ship, is on trial to-day.

The First National Petroleum Company, located in Buena Vista County, incorporated to-day; capital, one million dollars, in shares of five dollars each.

Owing to the creation of the new military district of Arizona, Gen. Mason commanding, the following changes have been made: Capt. Geo. P. Anders, Third Artillery, Brevet Major, will relieve Gen. Mason. Capt. Hugh B. Fleming, of the Ninth Infantry, will relieve Capt. Anders as Assistant Provost Marshal General. Assistant Surgeon Benj. Tappan has been ordered to report to General Mason for duty in Arizona, and Acting Assistant Surgeon J. C. Shorb has been assigned to duty at the recruiting station to relieve Dr. Tappan.

Mr. Boyce, a storekeeper on Alviso, committed suicide yesterday.

The steamer Sacramento, which will be due about Friday, will bring no passengers, as no steamer left New York on the [illegible], owing to the North Star having broke her shaft.

John S. Achelt has been sentenced to four years' imprisonment for grand larceny, and William Farrell six years for counterfeiting. Farrell was in the county jail yesterday.

HOW PERSONALS AID THE ENEMY.—[illegible] by military authority, says:

"The New York News has been requested [illegible] to inform its readers that it has been ordered by the War Department at Washington to [illegible] personal columns." As this [illegible] published in the [illegible] the News, it is proper that we advise our friends that it is no longer possible for us to [illegible] their personals to parties in the United States, and that it is useless for them to advertise them in the [illegible].

The News commenting on this "last act of despotism" says:

"It has heretofore been intimated by some of our cotemporaries that our personals afforded an opportunity of communication [illegible] between the North and South. This supposition [illegible] strongly absurd, for surely any rebel [illegible] desiring to communicate [illegible] would [illegible] the personals of the Daily News [illegible] inspection and [illegible] be as easy and much safer to communicate [illegible] through an advertisement for a [illegible] lost pocket book or stray horse in the columns of the Herald or Tribune."

There has never been [illegible] our knowledge, published in the [illegible] have strictly confined [illegible] to its legitimate end [illegible]. It has been the vehicle of communication [illegible] sorrowing and afflicted, and never permitted [illegible] our knowledge to be used for or against [illegible] Government. It is just as easy to write [illegible] letter by flag of truce as to publish one in the newspaper. And so far as detection [illegible] the flag of truce letter passes the [illegible] detection that is read [illegible] Fortress Monroe and the other in Richmond, while the published letter is open to the inspection of millions.

"The remarks of the News as to using the Herald or Tribune for purposes of [illegible] strictly [illegible]. We will call on the News [illegible] instances, now passed, where the "[illegible]" of the Herald, and that for the capture of the [illegible] was also planned through the same medium of communication. The [illegible] vertising in behalf of [illegible] the enemy's government permitted through the [illegible] of the News protested that paper from day to day [illegible] statements which [illegible]. The last and little act of despotism may inflict some pecuniary loss upon the News at the expense of [illegible] but it will not close the great channel of communication offered by the Herald to all who choose to pay for them. The Herald has [illegible] more of the reward of treason and given more aid and comfort to the enemy [illegible] than any ten papers in the United States. We suggest to the Herald to employ [illegible] take and [illegible] the [illegible] every person of [illegible] advertisement as the only way to [illegible] off the Confederate [illegible] in New York [illegible] Canada and other places in the United States. For the present it is useless [illegible] to send personals to the [illegible] or any paper in the United States [illegible] to renew this mode of correspondence we shall be glad to renew it.

The fuss which the [illegible] and the News make over these "last and little acts of despotism" shows that it affected the rebels seriously and interfered with their plans. The [illegible] New York Herald proves that there was a system in the [illegible] advertisements in the "personals" columns of the [illegible]."

THE FRANCO-MEXICAN CESSION.—A correspondent of the Paris [illegible] writes as follows [illegible] alleged cession of Mexican territory to France:

"In the first place, the French Government has not the slightest thought of any territorial annexation in Mexico whatever; at the most, with a view to the relief of the Mexican finances, it may be thought of substituting for the annuities that Mexico pays us for the expenses of the war the [illegible] of a certain number of auriferous and argentiferous deposits which France would undertake to work [illegible] or by a financial society. This is a [illegible] consideration which is not independent of [illegible], and which is [illegible] the mission of an engineer of mines, M. Laur, who had previously been charged with the duty of studying the auriferous deposits of California. His report was published last year in the Moniteur. As most of the mines which might become the subject of concessions of this kind between the two Governments are situated in Lower California and Sonora, people owing to their imperfect information have concluded that there was a question of territorial cession."

The correspondent of the [illegible] gives an explanation of the appointment of Dr. Gwin as Governor of the three provinces of Sonora, Lower California and Chihuahua. He says that gentleman played a prominent part in the [illegible] of California, and that he has been selected by the Emperor Maximilian in the hope that he may be as successful in the analogous part he will be called upon to fill in the three Mexican provinces above named. Emigrants from Europe are to be invited to the provinces under his jurisdiction; they are to be provided with lands on easy terms, and to be naturalized almost at once, as in America. In connection with this subject there is a great emigration scheme, which is said to be supported by the French Government, and by means of which it is hoped that from five to six thousand Europeans will arrive every month in the provinces governed by Dr. Gwin. The [illegible] calling attention to this correspondence, says it places complete confidence in the information furnished by the writer.

From the London Post's Paris letter of Feb. 8th.

The Moniteur contradicts the report about France having received from the Mexican Government Sonora or any other provinces. I forwarded you the statement of facts on Monday. His Excellency M. Drouyn de Lhuys has explained to the representatives of foreign Powers how this report originated, and at the same time assured them that France has no intention or desire to possess dominions in Mexico under any circumstances.

A PORTRAITURE OF PRESIDENT LINCOLN.—Perhaps in the absence of that statesmanlike presence of mind and fertility of resource for which no one would give Lincoln any considerable credit, the greatest quality he has shown, and that by which he has most distinguished himself from his more eminent colleagues, is a certain naturalism of mind closely connected perhaps, but not identical with his high integrity, which has enabled him to look at the position of the Government and the movements of the popular feeling as if he stood outside both, and were studying their situation and the influences which affect them almost as a student of natural history would study the instinct of an animal, and judge of her chances in a deadly struggle with another of a different nature. Compare his few and well marked speeches and acts with the false and feverish anticipations of Seward, or the energetic proselytism of any of the parties which strove to push him on or pull him back. He has not exactly guided the people of the Government, but he discovered accurately the time when the people were ripe for a fresh stride forwards, has declared the hour come, and never receded with that deceptive backward movement of the wave which is really only the preparation for another advance. Lincoln has never gone out of his way to anticipate or hope [illegible]. He has simply announced from time to time the maturity of a new stage of opinion, the conditions under which the war could be successfully prosecuted [illegible] without misleading the [illegible] at all events. He has kept silent while other politicians and ministers [illegible] to public opinion. In moments of triumph he has not been elated, and in moments of disaster he has not given any symptoms of depression. He has never swerved for a moment, even in the [illegible] of the first great [illegible], from the principles he had accepted before the election, and has been apparently the most [illegible] the [illegible] steps necessary to prevent the surrender of any of those principles. And we believe this strict naturalism in the treatment of popular forces has suited far better the mass of North Americans than one of Carlyle's [illegible] who might have tried to mould [illegible] the [illegible] fiber of American constitutional [illegible].—London Spectator.

A FAMILY WRANGLE.—The last week [illegible] in Paris [illegible] a mother [illegible] very early, who still prides herself on her youth and beauty. She has had difficulties with her son, who is old enough at least to be examined on oath. They both had to state their age in a court of justice.

"Your age, madam?" asked the courteous justice.

"Twenty-five," says audacious mother.

"Why," answers ingenuous youth, "I find, to my astonishment, that I am a year older than my mother."

CITY.

Money Market.

San Francisco Legal Tender rates [illegible]
New York Gold Quotations [illegible]

THE SANITARY CONDITION OF PORTLAND.—The city of Portland has the reputation abroad of being a healthy place, [illegible] our own citizens remark it—but quite the contrary [illegible] to the salubrity of climate, and situation, few cities can equal and none surpass our own. But candor and simple regard for truth compels us to say that its sanitary condition at present is deplorable. Its streets furnish a receptacle under the planks which [illegible] manner of filth and refuse [illegible] prevented from drying up [illegible] wood, there decomposes, throwing off noxious gases and poisoning with its putrid effluvia the pure air of Heaven. The streets so planked have the accumulated filth of years and months unremoved, and when the warm sun of spring looks forth upon them [illegible] the putrescent materials, heated and fermenting, [illegible] exhalations sufficient to poison a city. Unless a remedy is found, the grading of our streets will be an incalculable nuisance. [illegible] above the city banks form dams whose water accumulates in stagnant pools, which are ever renewed and fed from the sewerage of stores, out houses and stables. These form many centres of disease and death, which in case of an epidemical visitation will render many portions [illegible]. We notice in many places that the streets are being filled to the proper grade by the vile accumulations as they are removed from some of the planked streets, and even now, before the rainy season has fairly stopped, the passer by is almost stunned by the noisome effluvia which rises from these hillocks of decomposing materials. Does not every thinking man know that low malignant fevers are generated from those sources? What Portland needs, and must have, for her prosperity, is not commerce or felicity of situation—for these she has by an inevitable destiny—but a thorough system of cleanliness and effective drainage and sewerage, carried into operation by the municipal authorities of the city, and by the willing and compelling the stupid and refractory. When this is done a man may have some reasonable prospect of living to see the proper metes and boundaries of human life. If the good people of the city suppose that when their little loved ones are borne, attended by the sorrowful procession to the last resting place of the dead, the prattling feet no more to be heard on earth—their childish warble hushed in silence and their place vacant at the family board, that it is purely a visitation of Divine Providence, to be meekly acquiesced in as a stroke wise but inscrutable from the hand of the ever Beneficent Father, they certainly are very much bewildered. Let us give ourselves, and give our children better, purer air, for we can do it, and there will be fewer cases of low malignant fever, fewer cases of infantile convulsions, fewer cases of marasmus, and summer complaints, fewer cases and more recoveries from putrid sore throat. In a word, there will be fewer young immortals in the grave-yard, and more at home.

A VALUABLE CARGO.—The steamer Brother Jonathan, which left this port last evening for San Francisco, carried the largest and most valuable cargo of produce that has left the State for many years. She carries a large amount of flour and, wheat and the total amount of the entire cargo, at present prices, is valued at $85,000, besides which she has $58,000 in treasure shipped by parties as follows:

Wells, Fargo & Co.	$33,000
Ladd & Tilton	15,000
Other parties	10,000
Total	$58,000

EXPENSIVE BROWSING.—We observe the commendable spirit of our citizens to beautify and adorn their premises by setting out shade-trees, and notice equally as diligent efforts on the part of the numerous cattle in the streets to tear them down by browsing. Passing near the corner of Fourth and Stark streets there appeared to be a strong prospect of our obtaining an item by the sight of a butchering process, as the owner of a few handsome locust trees, which had been brought from Yamhill county, was greatly infuriated to see a milch cow and a heifer pulling at the branches yesterday morning, but the cattle escaped. We are of the opinion that men who keep a dairy in the city should be compelled to pay for the damages other citizens sustain in pasturing their stock.

THE PARLOR ALBUM.—What is a parlor album worth? You can go to almost any book store and buy the work at from $1 25 to $20 00. An album costing $10, we will say, holds one hundred photographs, the cost of which, estimated separately at one dollar each, would be for book and pictures one hundred and ten dollars. Then add to this fact that perhaps very many of those are likenesses of absent, deceased or very dear friends, and you attach a worth to the parlor album which is inestimable, and no article of furniture can ever be placed in a household half so much prized. The author or inventor of the parlor album has won for his name the honor of ages, and his work will be known while civilized nations live to enjoy it. It was in 1860, we believe, that these handsome books first made their appearance, and the sale has been enormous.

MARINE GARDEN.—The annual round of the Organ Grinder, in portions of New England used to be considered a good indication for spring work. Yesterday we noticed there was a cosmopolitan in this city, discoursing music on the street corners, and the soothing notes of his harp betokened Spring. He played, if not on a thousand strings at least with a spirit of perfectness, and his music had the desired effect. Later in the day, as if by magic, curling smoke on various suburban lots told of burning rubbish, before the destroyer of the last year's hop vine and pea brush, and rake and spade were of active utility in rooting up the soil for early beds of parsnips and cabbage. The sun shone, which is the true secret of such wonderful changes in the preparations for the vegetable kingdom. Spring is upon us.

RECORDER'S COURT.—In the Recorder's Court yesterday the following cases of disorderly conduct were disposed of by imprisonment. Charles Frost, coolly walked off for one day; William Roop, roped in for two days; H. M. Metcalfe, re-committed, one day; Indian Jim managed to save himself and was discharged. The court room was considerably "up side down" last evening undergoing repairs, but we found the Judge as amiable as ever.

A TECHNICALITY.—It is of the greatest importance to clearly understand the technical points of an indictment, in a case before court, and we very often hear of suits being dismissed in consequence of the technical points being imperfect. For instance, last week a young man barely escaped a term in the Penitentiary on an old indictment in Clackamas County Circuit Court, for perjury, by the evidence showing that the person administering the oath said, at the conclusion of it: "So help me God;" instead of, "So help you God."

VESSELS OFF THE BAR.—There was a report on the street yesterday that six vessels had been seen off the Bar since the steamer Geo. S. Wright left for Victoria. We have no doubt there might be three, but to magnify the number just now, is erroneous, as all those expected are, the Cambridge, 26 days out from Honolulu, the Jane A. Falkinburg, 25 days out from San Francisco, and the Almatia, which left the same port a few days later. The Helen W. Almy likely sailed on Monday, or yesterday, yet we have no report of it.

WORK ON THE CRUISER.—The work on this fine little steam yacht is progressing rapidly, and although not sufficient is done to show her true style, yet from what we see we are assured she will be a fine model of a craft.

AUCTION SALES.—Mr. A. B. Richardson will dispose of a general assortment of groceries, etc., at the regular semi weekly sale this morning, corner of Front and Oak streets. To-morrow he will dispose of the household furniture of Mr. G. W. Murray, corner of Third and Jefferson streets.

THANKS.—Wells, Fargo & Co. have our thanks for "many valuable favors." By them we were in receipt of Idaho City and Walla Walla papers last evening, of late date.

CIRCUIT COURT.—There has as yet nothing of importance transpired in the Circuit Court. Yesterday the principal time was taken up by motions and demurrers.

THE COMING STEAMER.—By telegram last evening, we are informed that the steamship Sierra Nevada, Francis Connor, Commander, left San Francisco for Portland direct yesterday afternoon.

WANTED.—A situation in this city, as clerk, porter or laborer, by a young married man who is not afraid to work and make himself useful. Enquire at this office.

KENTUCKY.—Governor Bramlette has communicated [illegible] to the Legislature with a message, wherein he advises its ratification, but argues that the Union ought to pay Kentucky the value of her slaves. In so far as those slaves [illegible] have been the property of loyal citizens, we recognize the justice of the claim; [illegible] just as absurd to pay a State for freeing her [illegible] people as to pay [illegible] We know of no large estate in Kentucky [illegible] worth more [illegible] under [illegible] a great many [illegible] Had Kentucky offered up her slaves two or three years ago [illegible] not only have been [illegible] but every dollar thus expended would have saved two to the Federal Treasury. Just now, that treasury could hardly be [illegible] struggling land [illegible] and we trust Kentucky will [illegible] memorialize Congress [illegible] to the national [illegible]. We are among those who will at all times be ready to respond to this appeal.—N. Y. Evening Post.

INDIAN ATROCITY.—The Denver News of January 11th says:

"A freighter on the road writes us from Valley Station that the Indians attacked near Dickinson's ranch, after killing young Andrews, [illegible] of his legs and arms, shot an arrow through each eye and then broke the arrow in his head. He mentions the names of one Charley Bray, a Frenchman, George Goodwin, a Missourian, and Francisco, a Spaniard, as being mixed with the Indians in this outbreak."

Cure Your Cold. Save Your Lungs.

NEWELL'S

PULMONARY SYRUP

HAS

CURED THOUSANDS!

And it will Cure You!

"A Cough is generally the effect of a Cold, which has either been improperly treated or entirely neglected. When it proves obstinate there is Always reason to fear the consequences,

STOP THAN COUGHING!!

Some of you can't, and we pity you. You have tried every remedy but the one destined, by its intrinsic merit, to supercede all similar preparations. It is not surprising you should be reluctant to try something else after the many experiments you have made of trashy compounds foisted on the public as a certain cure; but

NEWELL'S

Pulmonary Syrup!

Is really the VERY BEST remedy ever compounded for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Sore Throat, Asthma, Whooping Cough, Bronchitis and Consumption. Thousands of people in California and Oregon have been already benefited by its surprising curative powers.

WHAT KILLED HIM!

Dr. Hall, in his "Journal of Health," speaking of the death of Washington Irving, asks the above question, and adds "He might have remained with us for some years to come, had it not been for advice, kindly intended, no doubt, but given in thoughtlessness and reckless ignorance.

He Had a Cold!

Which, by some injudicious prescription, had been converted into asthma." Let me say to Dr. Hall that that "prescription" was not

NEWELL'S
SYRUP.

KEEP IT IN THE HOUSE, use it freely, give it to your children upon the slightest indications of a Cold, and you will think and speak of it as all do who have become acquainted with its merits.

Exciting Murder Trial.

Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday were occupied in receiving the testimony in this case, and on Thursday evening, March 2d, the argument of the prosecution was opened by R. J. Williams, Esq., who ably reviewed the evidence, though not at great length, showing that Beale was on Sunday, Jan. 8th, at the house of Wm. Taylor, on Mill Creek, about equidistant from Salem and old Mr. Delany's house; that he refused to ride into town next morning, evaded an invitation to walk in company with a neighbor, and was seen to take the Salem road. About 11 he was enquiring the way to Mill Creek bridge, at the house of Mr. Witzel, off of the Salem road and towards the direction of Delany's. On the same morning Baker left town on a bay horse, had on a light coat, had a double barrelled gun, and was met by several persons going out towards the same bridge Beale pretended to inquire for; he was seen to cross the bridge and go on beyond, towards the direction Beale was last seen taking. They are supposed to have met, crossed Mill Creek again, gone towards Delany's, where in company at dusk the murder was perpetrated. Tracks of two men were found next morning leading from Delany's house to where a horse was tied, and the tracks of the horse and of a footman were tracked nearly to Salem—about seven miles, not by the road, but much of the way through fields and pastures, to avoid observation. On the way through the field a pipe and matches were found, while a hat band was found where the horse was tied, near the murder; between nine and ten o'clock that night, three different persons, leaving town by an unfrequented route, met a horseman and footman, who acted suspiciously, and made no answer when addressed and avoided observation. The one on horseback had a gun and wore a light coat and his face looked dark. Soon after that hour both men are proved to have returned home, each had a dirty face, each washed, each told a false story as to his whereabouts. The track of the horse was identified by several as identical with the track made by Baker's horse; one peculiar shoe on the right fore foot matches the track followed; while the tracks of the footman are almost identical with the measures of the prisoner's feet. Some six persons testify that Beale, for years past, has been in the constant habit of talking of Delany and speaking of his money. Twice he has spoken of robbing him to get it, and one witness testified that, a year ago, he made a deliberate proposal that her husband should assist him to rob the old man, and, if necessary to consummate the act, kill him. Then, the hatband, found near the scene of the murder, fitted a hat found hanging up in Beale's house, like the one worn by him on the day of the murder. The pipe and matches are peculiar, and resemble articles used by the prisoners.

Occupying about an hour in a brief summary of the case, Mr. Williams closed, and the Court adjourned until the next morning to meet at the Theatre, where the crowds waiting to hear the arguments in the case could be better accommodated. Friday morning a crowded house waited with eager interest to listen, and about one hundred ladies were present in the gallery.

ARGUMENT OF THE DEFENSE.

Mr. Curl showed that the previous good character of the defendants was fully sustained; that the burden of the proof remained with the prosecution, while the prisoners were necessarily silent; that circumstantial evidence can only suffice to prove guilt when it established it beyond a doubt. He read at length from the received law on circumstantial evidence, and from the criminal code of Oregon; quoted many cases where such evidence had condemned innocent persons; urged the fact that the prisoners' identity was not positively proved, and spoke for some two hours in review of the evidence.

Mr. Logan most ably resumed the subject for the defence, and it was allowed by all, made a masterly effort in behalf of the accused. He said the prosecution in this case was remarkable, in that every fact of the prisoners' lives that could be urged against them was brought to view, and all that was in their favor was kept studiously out of sight. There was nothing to be gained by proving innocent men guilty; that is contrary to the spirit of the law, and the admissions of men are to be cautiously construed in connection with their guilt. He occupied remainder of the forenoon with quotations of law and the facts proven as to the execution of many innocent persons in the past on circumstantial evidence.

A GLANCE AT THE SCENE.

In the afternoon a larger audience even had assembled, and fear arose that the gallery, which was suspended from the roof of the building, might fall with the weight of persons in it. Twice the alarm was given, and each time a scene ensued that beggars description—the frantic crowd eagerly rushing for the single door of the gallery, to the imminent danger of all concerned. At last the excitement subsided, the gallery was thinned to a safe degree, and Mr. Logan resumed his speech.

The Court and jury occupied the stage, the two prisoners on the left, with Mrs. Beale sitting by her husband. Beale is about forty-one years of age, and had a very haggard and worn look; is a man of spare build, five feet eight inches high, a thin face, head not well shaped, with black hair and whiskers. Mrs. Beale is his second wife. She is not much, if any, over twenty years of age, is very good looking and is rather tall and graceful in appearance. Baker is not bad looking at first sight; fair complexion, bleached by confinement, rather full, clear eye, brown hair handsomely curling around his neck and ears, with an unstudied look. He showed no emotion or particular interest in the trial, rather unconcerned than otherwise, with his eye roving carelessly around the house; and if he showed any interest, it was when, in the course of the trial, some point was made against Beale, when he invariably smiled approvingly, as if he appreciated it. No one would have taken him for a prisoner on trial for his life. He was the tool and accomplice, in all probability, and was led by Beale, and from the latter's assurance doubtless expected to be cleared. It was quite an interesting scene, as the argument of Logan proceeded, to watch the Court, the jury and the audience. The prisoners could have seen, right opposite them, behind the scenes, where a curtain was raised to afford a view of the stage, the busy fingers of an actress plying a needle through the blue gauze that was in preparation to be worn upon the same stage some few hours later. Such is life.

LOGAN RESUMES.

Resuming the argument, Mr. Logan, when the excitement was over of the stampedes in the galleries, reviewed the evidence. Beale came to this country more than twenty years ago with the old man Delany, and had since lived near them and been intimate with all his family. He had won the old man's confidence under those circumstances, knew his affairs and frequently talked about them, as could be proved of many a man in the same neighborhood, where it was common to discuss the old man's wealth and where it was hidden. Men had grown gray in that county thinking of the old man's stores of gold, and wishing they could possess them.

There was no proof that Baker and Beale were intimate at any time, though they had been long acquainted, having worked together at Dan's but never been intimate since. The conversations of Beale about Delany's money had been held with persons who were above suspicion. He could not have intended,—did not try to induce them to assist in robbing the old man, and this talk of his is more a proof of his innocence than his guilt, as had he intended such an act, he would have concealed his intention. He endeavored to show that Mrs. Pomfrey had been instigated by revenge from a friend she suddenly became a foe and comes here a witness against him, under circumstances that entitle her story to no credit or consideration. Beale attempts to induce her to get her husband to assist him in a crime of the blackest hue, but that does not cause the family intimacy to cease, or make a break in their relations. There was no proof that Beale was not near Swartz's Mill even if the Swartz brothers did not see him there; there is no positive evidence that he was seen at Witzels, the boy only thinks so, while the boy swears to a ribbon watch guard while others swear he wore a steel one. There is no clear proof that the hat found in Beale's house belongs with the band found at Delany's. It is proved that that hat hung in his house all that day; and there is other proof that he wore a drab hat on that day. The men were not identified by those who met some one coming into town in the evening. Many men wore drab coats and carried guns.

The counsel skillfully reviewed all the evidence, insisting upon each point that was weak, and showing great tact in discussing the questions involved, claiming forcibly that the prisoners were not there to prove their innocence, the burden rested with the prosecution to show their guilt, and that the jury were to be convinced beyond a reasonable doubt that they were so or else acquit them. Mr. Logan spoke some four hours and was attentively listened to.

CLOSING OF THE PROSECUTION.

Mr. Mallory closed the argument for the prosecution, occupying the evening until a late hour. He skillfully supplied the defects that the defence had endeavored to point out; showed that the tracks of man and horse corresponded to those of the prisoners and the horse of Baker; that the story of Mrs. Pomeroy was corroborated by a great deal of testimony; that the anonymous letter was seen by others, and that her veracity was unimpeached; all the testimony introduced by the defence was contradicted by disinterested persons, and that through the whole trial the defendants had made no effort to prove their whereabouts from early in the morning until late in the evening of the 9th of January last. [illegible] affected by his speech that they appeared [illegible] before, given Baker [illegible] to [illegible] and [illegible].

Mr. Mallory concluded at a late hour, and the crowd adjourned for the night, to meet at the Court Room the next morning when the Court would charge the Jury.

CHARGE OF JUDGE BOISE.

After informing the jury that the constitution made them judges of the law and fact, the Judge fully but concisely gave a summary of the case and of the evidence; showed them what weight circumstantial evidence should have, and what care was to be used to give the accused the benefit of every reasonable doubt that might arise in relation to each peculiar circumstance, for each was a fact to be considered and accepted or rejected according to the determination they might take. Circumstantial evidence must have weight or justice would often be defeated; criminals sought to work in darkness, and often their conviction depended on circumstances, that when combined, formed positive proof. True many had been convicted when innocent, but not frequently under our system of laws. Most of these cases arose under old English Courts where prisoners had no one to defend them properly.

The only question for the jury to decide was if these men are, by the evidence proved beyond a reasonable doubt to have caused the death of Daniel Delany, as charged in the indictment; if so, their verdict was to be given and their duty discharged regardless of the consequences. He dwelt upon the credibility of the different testimony and how they were to judge of the same. In all his experience he had never known an innocent person found guilty of a crime, and he believed the fate of any man charged with the commission of crime could safely be rested with an impartial jury. The facts, though complex and various, were not complicated and would not seriously embarrass them.

RENDERING THE VERDICT.

After being out between three and four hours, the jury rendered their verdict. As they filed into the court room each man wore an expression that showed a solemn consciousness of a duty painfully discharged. Judge Boise is not an impressible man, but as he glanced at the lines traced upon the paper, his hand was seen to tremble, and his face instantly became ashy pale. Every heart beat with anxiety as he commanded the jury and the prisoners to rise and look at each other. Then reading the verdict of "guilty as charged in the indictment," he asked each of the jury to signify if it was his. There have been few more impressive scenes in a court room, and few audiences have been more impressed at the rendering of any verdict.

THEY ARE SENTENCED.

At 4 o'clock Court met again to hear the motion for a new trial, which was refused, and then the prisoners stood up to receive sentence. When asked by the Court

"Geo. P. Beale, have you anything to say, why sentence should not be passed upon you?"

Beale replied: "I don't know that I have. I don't think I have a friend in the community. There has been false swearing against me here in this Court; everybody seems to think I ought to die, and I suppose I must be hung to satisfy them. I hope everybody here is as willing and ready to die as I am. I expect soon to meet old man Delany in the other world, and say to him, 'Old man Delany, it was not me who killed you.' I knew the old man well in this world, and always was a friend to him here. I never feared to look him or any other man in the face, and shall not fear to meet him there."

When the same question was put to Baker, he arose and spoke quite rapidly as follows:

"All I have to say, Judge Boise, is, that when they hang me they will hang an innocent man. I never killed old man Delany. I never was at his house but once, and that was a long time ago. Give me time, Judge Boise, and I can prove my innocence. I saw plenty of men on the French Prairie that day, and must be able to find some of them. I rode all the way to Lake Labish with one man. I have been shut up in jail here all the time, and could not see any one but the sheriff, and my wife sometimes, and part of the time I have been kept upstairs all by myself. I am an innocent man. Give me time, Judge Boise, I can prove myself innocent. I know I can."

By this stage of affairs, Baker had lost all his self-possession, and was much excited, pale and trembling; probably he had been buoyed up by the hope of being acquitted.

Judge Boise proceeded to pass sentence upon the unhappy men. The Court had little to say. The trial had been a fair one in all respects. Early in the hearing of the case an affidavit had been filed, asking for a change of venue upon the ground that a fair trial could not be had; the community was prejudiced and the Court could not fairly sit upon the case. He was a sworn officer, had taken an oath to faithfully discharge his duty, and knew that he had no prejudice in the matter. Both are strangers to him; Beale he supposed was another man, and Baker he never knew. Expecting to have the case to try in his own court, he had avoided all conversation about it, and did not attend the preliminary examination. Under his oath he was obliged to try all cases that come before him and should do so, unless conscious of a prejudice that would disqualify him for so doing. The Court said—As far as I am concerned, I only know from the evidence submitted here anything about this case. You have had a fair and impartial trial. It was your privilege to use twenty challenges in the formation of a jury. You scarce availed yourselves of half that number. I sent to distant parts of the county and had fifty men summoned especially upon your case, and every man has been rejected against whom you objected. It is supposed that a man can have a fairer trial in his own county where his good character, if he has one, can be easiest proved and will have the most weight. There has been no inducement for false swearing; all the witnesses were disinterested, and the testimony most objected to has been amply corroborated. The Court does not see how the jury could come to any different conclusion than they did. The accused did not attempt to show their whereabouts, and the jury were warranted in their conclusion. A man that will steal will lie, and a man that will commit a murder will lie about it. They always declare themselves innocent. I never knew it to fail. There remains no doubt that Daniel Delany died at your hands; there is no hope of escape. (Here Beale interrupted by saying that he didn't wish to escape and he wanted that understood.) He expected to die and was ready and willing to die. There is no hope for clemency under any circumstances that are likely to arise; it remains for you only to prepare for death, and I advise you to so prepare and that you confess your crime and make some restitution to Delany's heirs of what you took from him. The old man's money was sweat for and hoarded up for them, and really is theirs. Let it be your last act to restore it. Beale asked that sentence be deferred as long as possible, not on his account but others, his wife was in delicate health.

The sentence was as follows: George P. Beale, you will be taken from this place to the place of confinement, which is the common jail of this county; you will be kept there until the 17th day of May next, between the hours of 10 o'clock, A. M., and 2 o'clock, P. M., when you will be taken to the place of public execution where you will be hung by the neck until you are dead, and may God have mercy on your soul. Baker's sentence was the same.

Messrs. TILTON & McFARLAND,

Gentlemen: From representations made by Mr. Lillie, I was induced to purchase of him one of his

So Called "Fire Proof Safes."

On the 16th of February last, a fire occurred in our block which destroyed a number of buildings, and our own with the rest. We trusted our books, papers and all in the safe. After the fire the so called "safe" was taken to the cellar, and on opening it we found that Everything had been Destroyed.

We send you the safe, with what is left of the papers, and you will see that not one of them is legible or strong enough to sustain its own weight. Having the curiosity to know how our neighbors fared in this fire, we noticed McKenzie & Hardy just opening their safe (TILTON & McFARLAND'S make) and its contents were found to be

In Perfect Condition.

This led us to further investigation, and we found to our surprise that from the large amount of combustible material in Messrs. McK. & H.'s cellar—such as lard, pork, etc.—their safe was subjected to a much greater heat than that of our own, we being in the clothing business and had but little in the cellar. There was another of Lillie's safes here subjected to the same fire, faring, however, no better than ours.

Very respectfully,
Your obedient servants,
(Signed) GEO. L. CHESBORO & CO.

The stooping, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man; he stands erect, he moves with a firm step; his mind, which was previously sunk in gloom or an almost idiotic apathy, becomes bright and active; and he goes forth regenerated, conscious of new vigor.—The medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition.

IRRITATION OF THE NECK OF THE BLADDER,
INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, AND
CATARRH OF THE BLADDER,
STRANGUARY AND BURNING, OR PAINFUL URINATING,
CALCULUS, GRAVEL,
BRICK DUST DEPOSIT, AND MUCOUS
OR MILKY DISCHARGES AFTER URINATING.

For these diseases it is truly a sovereign remedy, and too much cannot be said in its praise. A single dose has been known to relieve the most urgent symptoms. TRY IT in these cases, and you will ever give praise to

CONSTITUTION WATER.

Males or Females,

Are you troubled with that distressing pain in the small of the back, and through your hips? CONSTITUTION WATER will relieve you like magic.

ALLEN'S

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS' TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION. It is WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it, if only taken in time.

THE WORLD RENOWNED

SINGER SEWING MACHINE

MANUFACTORY:

MOTTO—"The Singer Sewing Machines are the only Machines that can Sew all kinds of Cloth, and with all kinds of Thread."

Singer's Letter A Family Machine is the best and cheapest Machine in the world for Family Sewing. There is no doubt as to the value of our Machines for manufacturing purposes, but it is only of late that the public began to learn that the essential elements of a Machine best adapted to the heaviest work, would also be the elements to be embodied in a Family Machine.

We would ask for our Letter A Machine the attention of Vest Makers and Dress Makers, and all who want Machines for Light Manufacturing Purposes, which embody the principles of the Manufacturing Machines, making, like them, the interlocked stitch, and are destined to be as celebrated for FAMILY SEWING and light Manufacturing purposes, as our Manufacturing Machines are for manufacturing purposes in general.

FAMILY SEWING MACHINES are valuable in proportion to the number of things they can do well. See what ours can do before making a purchase.

All persons requiring information about Sewing Machines, their sizes, prices, working capacities, and the best method of purchasing, can obtain it by sending for a copy of the SINGER MANUFACTURING COMPANY'S ILLUSTRATED PAMPHLET, which is entirely devoted to the subject. IT WILL BE SENT GRATIS.
